

Blain Biographical Directory of Anglican clergy in the Diocese of Honolulu 1862-1902

The 'Reformed Catholic Church of Hawai'i' began with the consecration of the first bishop of Honolulu, Thomas Nettleship STALEY in 1861. In 1872 the diocese became the Anglican church of Hawai'i, under his successor Alfred WILLIS the second bishop of Honolulu. On WILLIS's resignation in 1902, the see became a missionary district within the Episcopal Church of the United States of America, and in 1969 the diocese of Hawai'i.

This biographical directory lists over 50 clergy who passed through Honolulu in the first forty years of Anglican church life. Few priests were in the diocese of Honolulu more than a year or two. Many biographies reveal visionary hopes and bitter disappointments. Several lives are shadowy to the point of invisibility.

At the end of the sections in the biographies, bracketed numbers indicate the sources of preceding information. The Blain Biographical Directory of Anglican Clergy in the South Pacific (which includes some 1,650 priests) may be found on the Kinder library website, in Auckland New Zealand. These bracketed numbers are there given bibliographical substance in a document accompanying the biographical directory.

The compiler points out that this directory has been researched and compiled without funding. I am very grateful to the hundreds of correspondents and agencies who have voluntarily assisted me on this work since the early 1990s.

The compiler welcomes corrections and additions sent to mwblain@paradise.net.nz. Such will be incorporated in the master-copy held in Wellington New Zealand, and in due course in the online version of this directory with Project Canterbury.

Note: May 1894 to the secretary SPG London, Bishop WILLIS wrote of the difficulties with LEWIS, sent out by Mr WIGRAM of CMS for the wealthy sugar plantation owner, Theo DAVIES: 'having been ordained by Bishop CROWTHER of his earnestness there was no doubt. But he had had to put a strained interpretation on the Church's teaching on the subject of Baptism before he could take Holy orders in the church of England. He stood on the very edge of the Church's platform so that it is no matter of surprise to find him slipping off and I doubt if it will be possible to hold him back. He has now announced his conversion to the tenets of the Seventh Day Adventists and regards both Infant Baptism and the observance of Sunday as untenable. I am giving him time to reconsider these points before accepting his resignation. In neither of these matters will Mr DAVIES sympathize with him. But it is clear that the cause of his being so easily carried away by false opinion is that he never ex animo accepted the principles of the Church.' (micro-ms-coll-17-119 ATL)

Background notes

1858 King KAMEHAMEHA IV (Alexander LIHOLIHO) of Hawai'i [Sandwich islands] and Queen EMMA headed a subscription list to pay for an Anglican priest to establish and conduct services for an Anglican church in Honolulu. The monarchs wanted to establish an 'Hawai'i Reformed Catholic Church'. The mission was intended to have support from the Anglican church in the republican USA as well as in royalist England. Through the king's minister of foreign affairs the Honourable Robert Crichton WYLLIE approached W Ingraham KIP bishop of California. KIP had no clergy spare for a such a new mission.
(It is also possible that the king asked Dr Rufus ANDERSON foreign secretary for the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Affairs (based in Boston USA) to approach an Episcopalian bishop in the USA, seeking an evangelistic missionary. In 1861 ANDERSON voiced his fears of British imperialism in a protest to the archbishop of Canterbury.) See Emma, Hawai'i's Remarkable Queen a biography, by George S KANAHELE, (1999:Hawai'i)

Then WYLLIE himself a keen church member wrote to Manley HOPKINS the Hawaiian consul general in London; who organised a 'Committee for Promoting the English Church in Hawai'i'.

1860 the king with encouragement of his wife Emma wrote to Queen VICTORIA to renew his appeal. With the support of Horatio POTTER bishop of New York in the USA, Bishop KIP brought the matter up with Samuel WILBERFORCE bishop of Oxford who was strongly supportive, and with AC TAIT bishop of London, who had his doubts but was carefully supportive.

1861 at the English church convocation, WILBERFORCE in promoting the cause, presented it as a royal initiative of Queen EMMA and her husband King KAMEHAMEHA IV. The king had donated a church site, and promised annual funding of £200 as well endowment land.

The appointed committee (including Bishop WILBERFORCE, Archdeacon BICKERSTETH, Lord Robert CECIL MP, AJ Beresford HOPE, J Gellibrand HUBBARD MP [Baron ADDINGTON], the Honourable Douglas GORDON and representatives of SPG and of SPCK) ruled in favour of the proposed episcopal mission, and sought a candidate for the new bishopric.

The Revd William DENTON, of S Bartholomew Cripplegate London, recommended the appointment of STALEY as 1st bishop: with the legal ruling delivered in support of the appointment of missionary bishops to territories outside the reach of British rule, with MACKENZIE consecrated as a missionary bishop for Africa, and with JC PATTESON as missionary bishop for Melanesia, the appointment of a bishop was possible - but objections were again raised to the appointment of a bishop for Honolulu and thus specifically to STALEY:

10 Nov 1861 STALEY not consecrated as announced, as his appointment lacked necessary legal status which would have been provided by a Crown licence – which was ‘not available’

11 Nov 1861 hostility to his consecration: STALEY wrote to TAIT bishop of London complaining he was ‘exceedingly disgusted with the animus and statements’ (280; The Times)

11 Dec 1861 appointed bishop in the Sandwich islands under a licence signed by Earl RUSSELL secretary of state for Foreign Affairs (Foreign office lists)

1861 1st bishop for the missionary district of Honolulu, including the Hawaiian islands, Guam, Okinawa, Taiwan, Kwajalein [1969- diocese of Hawai’i, only the Hawai’ian islands, a diocese of the Episcopal Church of the USA] [Note 1862-1871 The diocese was legally incorporated as ‘the Hawaiian Reformed Catholic Church’; in his preface to the book (1862) Hawai’i: the Past, Present, and Future of its Island Kingdom by Manley HOPKINS Mission committee leader and Hawaiian consul-general in London, Samuel WILBERFORCE wrote: ‘Our relation, too, to New Zealand adds greatly to the interest of this undertaking. From the New Zealand church, our own Bishop Patteson – clarum et venerabile nomen – is making his way of blessing northward through the Melanesian group. Southward, on his way of benediction, may the Bishop of Honolulu speed, until the two advancing currents of the living waters of the living Gospel of our Lord knit in one long grasp the hands of the two Island-Prelates; and they kneel together on the shore of some jointly conquered island, to exclaim in grateful adoration, This hath God done!’ (pxii). Bishop WILLIS (and others) on occasion took this approach when he wanted to extend his episcopal authority beyond the Sandwich islands. (MWB)]

11 Oct 1862 from Southampton via San Francisco, arrived Hawai’i with a nucleus of diocesan staff (IBBOTSON, MASON and his wife and daughter), TN STALEY and his wife and six or seven children, a nurse, a governess (406)

On arrival in Honolulu, took the funeral of King KAMEHAMEHA IV aged nearly 30; Robert Crichton WYLLIE (a high-church anglican) and those with him were keen to develop the English Establishment links of the Anglican mission to restrain USA influence and the likelihood of American annexation of the kingdom of the Sandwich islands [Hawai’i]. However Bishop STALEY was not himself an agent of the English system and resented it being said so in regular attacks on the Anglican mission. (410) c1864 the American Minister James McBRIDGE regarded the government of King KAMEHAMEHA V as anti-American, and opposed to the two ‘English parasites’, STALEY and the British Commissioner SYNGE

07 May 1865 letter of introduction and commendation for the Revd W Hoapili KAAUWAI, friend and companion of the late King KAMEHAMEHA IV whom he aided in translating the Book of Common Prayer into Hawaiian tongue (280)

1865 visited Philadelphia for the general convention of the Episcopal church of the USA (for the first time since the USA civil war, the southern bishops attended), joined in the consecration of two missionary bishops, secured grants towards the stipends of two priests (GB WHIPPLE, E/T WARREN) and a pledge from the house of bishops to ‘aid the word of planting the Church in the Sandwich Islands by every means in their power’ (405); rejected criticism that the diocese was a British imperial mission. However, according to RESTARICK, the two clergy who responded to this call were GALLAGHER and WHIPPLE – he does not mention E (or T) WARREN; however IBBOTSON reported in Mission Life (Oct 1866), that a third priest R B POST had come, as warden to the College of S Alban.

[Note: The Revd Franklin Samuel RISING secretary of CMS in America, author of Are there Romanizing Germs in the Prayer Book? (1868)), and soon a member of the split-away Reformed Episcopal church, particularly attacked STALEY and the Anglican mission, and in doing so encouraged a vicious attack by an American journalist Mark TWAIN on the Royal family's (and STALEY's) church. TWAIN described the Anglican diocese as 'a pinchbeck thing, an imitation, a bauble, an empty show. It had no power, no value for a king. It could not harry or burn or slay... It was an Established Church without an Establishment; all the people were Dissenters'. TWAIN attacked STALEY in a newspaper article: STALEY 'has shown the temerity of an incautious and inexperienced judgement, rushing in here fresh from the heart and home of a high civilisation and throwing down the gauntlet of defiance before a band of stern, tenacious, unyielding, tireless, industrious, devoted old Puritan knights who had seen forty years of missionary service.'

After his several months in Hawai'i TWAIN wrote (July 1866) that he was an 'old friend' of the Revd Franklin Samuel RISING 'of Virginia City', and himself was choir leader in RISING's informal service on board the ship sailing from Honolulu to San Francisco (see online text of TWAIN's Letters ProjectGutenberg;407)]

29 Sep 1866 STALEY wrote to Bishop TAIT of London: disappointed at low level of English support for the Honolulu mission (280)

06 Mar 1867 the new king KAMEHAMEHA V (brother to late King KAMEHAMEHA IV) laid foundation-stone cathedral S Andrew Honolulu, on land given by the late King KAMEHAMEHA IV king of Hawai'i

1868 or 1869 after the Lambeth Conference at the request of the bishop of London and request of SPG: held confirmations among the consular chaplaincies in South America outside British territory on the East and West coasts of South America: according to PASCOE in (405) 'during his absence the diocese had become disorganized, and following the example of several of his clergy he retired in 1870', leaving only two clergy in diocesan positions (according to RESTARICK's history of the diocese)

and a founder of Royal museum Honolulu

22 May 1869 approaching his retirement from the see; need for successor from England not USA, schism caused by his dean

22 Jun 1869 from Buenos Aires to TAIT: visiting South America to commend work of Anglican chaplains

14 Dec 1869 to TAIT: ECUSA influence growing stronger and wealthier than the poverty of the Anglican mission, suggests withdrawal in favour of the Americans, to correspond with his retirement (280)

22 Mar 1870 John JACKSON bishop London to TAIT abp of Canterbury: native congregations supported by Queen EMMA favour ritualism but the (mixed traditions, particularly Congregationalist) Europeans do not; JACKSON writes again that the diocese needs reconstruction when STALEY has gone; S WILBERFORCE notes that STALEY received the see from the King of Hawai'i and he must resign only to him (280)

02 Jun 1870 STALEY departed from Hawai'i, leaving the diocese of Honolulu – the diocese without a bishop until the arrival of Alfred WILLIS 30 Jun 1872; however

28 Jul 1871-01 Aug 1871 Bishop Samuel Tarratt NEVILL bishop of Dunedin New Zealand visited Honolulu (406)

ca Jul 1870 STALEY asked the bishop of California to procure the consecration of a specified American priest (not named) as bishop for Honolulu

30 Jul 1870 Bishop JACKSON of London to TAIT (formerly bishop of London and now archbishop of Canterbury: STALEY's fault was 'untruthfulness and slipperiness in money matters; and he should resign; the people do not want a ritualist

06 Aug 1870 STALEY from Pall Mall London to TAIT: he could now retire honourably; he later wrote that his successor should be 'a moderate man, leaning to the Catholic rather than to the Protestant side, a man of sense and fortune' [see WILLIS, ALFRED, who certainly leaned to the Catholic side but fulfilled no other of these criteria] (280)

ca Aug 1870 resigned see of Honolulu

29 Oct 1870 STALEY in London to TAIT: referred to the peculiarity of his position 'as being not a Colonial Bishop but under the Foreign Office...' (280)

08 Aug 1870 resignation from the see received by Foreign office London (foreign office lists)

28 Jan 1871 King KAMEHAMEHA V to Abp TAIT: expressed goodwill towards Hawaiian mission, wished TAIT to nominate and consecrate a new bishop, undertook to secure adequate financial support (280)

14 Feb 1871 STALEY in Kensington London wrote to TAIT: endorsed his (and Samuel WILBERFORCE's) proposal to replace him as bishop of Honolulu with Henry Benjamin WHIPPLE bishop of Minnesota (in the ECUSA); he now wished to begin work again - in England (280)

13 Jun 1871 in London: wrote to AC TAIT now abp of Canterbury: forwards five documents to assist TAIT to decide whether to appoint him to the see of Colombo [in Ceylon; Sri Lanka] (280)

19 Jun 1871 in Phillimore Place London W: wrote to TAIT, denied his episcopate a failure; traced problems to his absence from the diocese in 1868 for purpose of fundraising; accused the Hon the Revd CA HERVEY of undermining his authority (HM representative in Honolulu: testified to STALEY's qualities and forbearance while in office and since, and to his difficulties counteracting the 'army' of American Congregationalists (280))

11 Aug 1871 The Revd WT BULLOCK organizing secretary for SPG London: Alfred WILLIS had declined the bishopric, and he now suggested advantages of selecting an American priest to 'conciliate the American Episcopal Church' (280)

27 Sep 1871 Alfred WILLIS accepted appointment to the see of Honolulu (280)

1872 STALEY now rector Oakley and vicar Croxall co Staffordshire diocese Southwell

17 Jan 1872 Abp TAIT to STALEY: trusted he was now reassured about charges brought against him; TAIT understood the Honolulu mission committee (leader Manley HOPKINS, consul-general for Hawai'i (based in London), author (1862) Hawai'i: the past present and future of its Island Kingdom, with a preface by the bishop of Oxford [Samuel WILBERFORCE], father of Gerard Manley HOPKINS SJ, poet) considered the matter ended (280)

05 Apr 1873 claimed entitlement of £200 from SPCK granted but not drawn upon in his time as bishop of Honolulu: but time had lapsed and SPCK would not pay up – the correspondence continued and arguments sustained on all sides (280)

1881 with wife, Edith Frances STALEY daughter aged 28 born Wandsworth, Leonard Sewallis STALEY son aged 23 no occupation [but later a priest] born Wandsworth, eight boarders (including Stephen LUSHINGTON 17 born Calcutta), three servants, residing Croxall vicarage (8; The Times)
